WELCOME TO FENWAY PARK

50 Years of Yawkey Tradition

All of the Red Sox family welcomes you to an enjoyable visit to Fenway Park. Exciting baseball is a tradition in the park that is considered one of the most unique in the major leagues.

We are always trying to improve our facilities in order to provide the best possible conditions for our fans to have a pleasant stay here. Hopefully you will not be inconvenienced in any way while our current refurbishing project continues.

Although the Boston entry in the American League is now in its 82nd season, the Red Sox nickname wasn't adopted until 1907. The team was known as the Pilgrims in those days and played their games at the Huntington Ave. grounds where Northeastern U. now stands. Fenway Park opened in 1912 and was reconstructed in 1934 by the late Tom Yawkey during his first year of ownership.

Over 26 million fans have attended games in Fenway Park in the last 15 years and during that span the Red Sox have been the only major league team to have a winning record every single season. In 1981 the Red Sox were an exciting, come-from-behind team under the astute direction of Manager Ralph Houk, and were in the Eastern Division race until the final weekend. In 1967 and 1975 American League championships were won and classic World Series followed against St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The rich tradition of the Red Sox and Fenway Park has been enhanced by the many outstanding players who have performed here—from Cy Young, Babe Ruth, Jimmie Foxx, Ted Williams and Carl Yastrzemski to the present nucleus of Jim Rice, Dwight

Evans, Jerry Remy, Dave Stapleton and Carney Lansford.

The playing field is virtually the same today as it was over 40 years ago. The famous "Green Monster" wall, the intriguing angles and corners around the outfield and the closeness of the crowd to the action are reasons why Fenway Park is such a captivating place.

Since 1976 extra enjoyment has been extended to fans through the centerfield message board and its ability to provide statistics, information and replays. The board was constructed after the 1975 season along with a new left field wall. At the same time padding was installed to protect the outfielders.

The diagram on page 57 shows the location of all Fenway Park facilities and the maps on page 60 show the various methods and routes leading here. We thank Red Sox fans throughout New England for their tremendous support.

THE MANAGER

Ralph Houk

Age: 62, Turns 63 Aug. 9; Born: August 9, 1919, Lawrence, Kan. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 190 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Pompano Beach, Fla. Married Bette Porter. Children: Donna 11/22/41, Richard 2/28/43, Robert 8/24/49.

The Red Sox surprised most people in 1981 with a 59-49 record, an exciting style of play and their persistent chase for the Eastern Division title. Sparked by the perpetual optimism of new manager Ralph Houk and his clever manipulation of the pitching staff, the Red Sox weren't eliminated until the final weekend. The team's come-from-behind trademark in 1981 resulted in 16 wins in the final at bat and 14 wins after trailing into the seventh inning. Houk finished second in the U.S. Manager of the Year Poll for the A.L.

On Oct. 27, 1980 Houk was named the 35th manager of the Red Sox, ending a two-year retirement. Ralph previously managed 16 years in the A.L. with the Yankees and Tigers. In addition to being a winning manager (1366-1298 .513) he is also credited with the ability to develop young players. Houk succeeded Casey Stengel as Yankee manager in 1961 and directed N.Y. to three straight pennants and two World Championships (1961-62). Those feats resulted in such honors as Major League Manager of the Year by The Sporting News in 1961 and managing the A.L. All Star team in 1962-63. He spent two years as Yankee Vice-Pres. and Gen. Manager before moving back as manager May 7, 1966 replacing Johnny Keane. He was named A.L. Manager of the Year in 1970.

Ralph left N.Y. after 1973 to become manager of the Tigers for the next five years. He announced his retirement after guiding the young Tigers to an 86-76 record in 1978 and spent the next two years in Pompano Beach. Houk is second in point of service as a manager in the major leagues to Gene Mauch of the Angels.

Houk played in the Yankee organization as a catcher, 1939-54, with four years (1942-45) out for military duty with the Rangers of the 9th Armored Div. in Europe in WW II. He rose from private to major, saw action at Bastogne and The Bulge and was awarded the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

WALTER JOHN (WALT) HRINIAK #33

Age: 38, Turns 39 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, Natick, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178 lbs. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass.

Now in his sixth year with the Red Sox Walter has built a solid reputation as one of baseball's top young coaches. In addition to his bullpen coaching duties he works on hitting techniques with several of the Sox and has won acclaim for his methods. He's recognized as one of the best batting practice pitchers in the game and is a keen student of overall strategy.

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniaik put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniaik signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

ALBERT LEE (LEE, STINGER) STANGE #34

Age: 45; Born: October 27, 1936, Chicago, Ill. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 170 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Fountain Valley, Calif. Married June. Children: Tim 9/3/64, Jim 3/21/67, Jana 5/15/68, Jennifer 9/25/66, Christopher 11/1/67.

The Red Sox had a much-improved pitching staff in 1981 and much of the credit went to Stange. He was selected by Ralph Houk to be pitching coach in Nov. 1981 after a six-year absence from the Red Sox major league staff. He rejoined the Sox in 1980 as a minor league pitching instructor on the Triple A and Double A levels and served as a West Coast scout.

"Stinger" ended a 10-year major league career in 1970 and was the Red Sox minor league pitching coach in 1971 before moving up to the club's major league staff in 1972-74. He held the same position with the Twins in 1975 and then joined the Oakland organization in 1976 as a minor league instructor. He was the A's pitching coach 1977-79 and helped develop the young pitching staff that became one of the A.L.'s best in 1980-81.

Stange had a 62-61 major league record with the Twins, Indians, Red Sox and White Sox. He came to Boston 6/2/66 from the Indians with pitcher Don McMahon for Dick Radatz. He was 8-10 with a 2.77 ERA (best on the team) during the 1967 pennant-winning season and the Sox best reliever in 1968 with 5 wins and 11 saves in 50 games. On 6/29/70 he was sold to the White Sox. "Stinger" was All State in baseball and All Chicago in basketball at Proviso Township H.S. He was also a football quarterback and teammate of former NFL star Ray Nitschke, and went to Drake U. on a football scholarship. On 9/2/64 he tied the M.L. record of 4 strikeouts in one inning for the Indians.

EDWARD FRED JOSEPH (EDDIE) YOST #36

Age: 55; Born: October 13, 1926, Brooklyn, N.Y. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Wellesley, Mass. Married Pat Healy. Children: Felita 1/13/62, Michael 11/12/63, Alexis 5/3/65.

Yost is highly-regarded among baseball people for the excellent job he does as third base coach. Quick thinking and thorough knowledge of the opposition's strengths and weaknesses are necessary ingredients for a successful third base coach, and Yost has always demonstrated those attributes. Eddie is in his sixth year at that spot for the Red Sox after doing likewise for the Mets, 1968-76 and Washington Senators, 1963-67. He was with the Mets in the 1969 and 1973 World Series.

"The Walking Man," as he was known during his 17-year major league career, was an outstanding third baseman and leadoff hitter. He came from the campus of New York U. to the Senators in 1944 and went on to set several records for third basemen. He led the A.L. six times in walks, had over 100 walks eight times, scored over 100 runs five times and twice led the league in fielding. He still holds the A.L. record of 28 home runs as leadoff batter.

He was traded from Washington to Detroit in Dec. of 1958 and was selected by the Angels in baseball's first expansion draft, Dec. 14, 1960. When Yost retired after the 1962 season he held the major league record for most games at third base (2,008) and the A.L. marks for putouts (2,356), assists (3,659) and chances (6,015). He was selected for the A.L. All Star team in 1952 but did not play. He has a Master's Degree in Physical Education from N.Y.U. and is a member of their Hall of Fame. On Nov. 1, 1981 he was inducted into the Washington, D.C. Hall of Stars and his portrait was hung in D.C. Stadium.

TOMMY (TOMMY) HARPER #32

Age: 41; Born: October 14, 1940, Oak-Grove, La. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 160 lbs. Brown eyes, Black hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Stoughton, Mass. Married Bonnie Jean Williams.

Harper is in his third year as the club's first base coach and base-running instructor. He spent the 1979 season in the Red Sox public relations office before joining the coaching staff. Tommy had a 15-year major league career with Cincinnati, Cleveland, the Seattle Pilots, Milwaukee, the Red Sox, California, Oakland and Baltimore and then was a scout and minor league coach for the Yankees.

He started his career with the Reds at the end of the 1962 season and finished with the Orioles in 1976. In 1810 games Harper hit .257 with 146 home runs and 408 stolen bases. In 1970 he hit 31 home runs and stole 38 bases for Milwaukee, a feat accomplished by Bobby Bonds, Willie Mays, Henry Aaron and Ken Williams. He hit 6 homers that year as leadoff batter, to tie for the A.L. record with Eddie Joost (1948), Eddie Yost (1959) and Bert Campaneris (1970). In 1965 he led the N.L. in runs (126) for the Reds and in 1969 he led the A.L. with 73 stolen bases for the Pilots. He played for the Red Sox in 1972-74 and was the team's MVP in 1973 when he led the A.L. with a club-record 54 SB's, scored 92 runs and hit 17 homers.

Harper starred in three sports at Encinal H.S. and Santa Rosa College and hit .507 at San Francisco State before signing with the Reds. He was the MVP of the Three-I League in 1961 and played 1B-2B-3B-OF in the majors.

JOHN MICHAEL (JOHNNY) PESKY #6

Age: 62, Turns 63 Sept. 27; Born: September 27, 1919, Portland, Ore. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 170 lbs. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Swampscott, Mass. Married Ruth Hickey. Children: David 12/19/52.

For almost 40 years Johnny has been associated with the Red Sox in almost every phase of the game, as a player, coach, manager, radio-TV announcer and advertising salesman. He's still one of the most popular members of the Red Sox and makes many off-season appearances on the banquet circuit. The Boston Baseball Writers honored Pesky with their "Good Guy" award at the 1982 Jan. banquet. He was the first base coach for five years and then moved to a dugout role assisting the manager in 1980 while continuing to be the team's hitting instructor.

Johnny was an outstanding shortstop, third baseman and all-around hitter. He holds the Red Sox records for most hits by a rookie (205) and most singles in a season (172) and hit over .300 six times in his major league career. He was the first Red Sox player to have three 200-hit years (Jim Rice is the 2nd). After 10 years with Boston, Detroit and Washington, Pesky coached under Ralph Houk in Denver in 1955 and managed in the Detroit farm system from 1956 through 1960. In the mid-1960's he was a coach for the Pirates and a manager in their system before joining the Red Sox broadcast crew in 1969. He spent six years as part of the radio and television team. He also managed Seattle for the Red Sox in 1961-62 before moving up to the parent Boston team in 1963-64. He's tied for the M.L. record in leading a league in hits 3 straight years.

RED SOX 4 BEST DEFENSE IN THE A.L.

DWIGHT EVANS

By Ned Martin

There are four of them. Their offices are the outfields of 14 ball parks in the A.L. They handle their jobs efficiently and often spectacularly. Their firm name is Miller, Evans, Rice and Nichols.

The Red Sox outfield of 1982 is one of the two best defensive units in the A.L. Some will rate it alongside the Oakland A's trio of Ricky Henderson, Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas. Some will say it is not quite up to that group. But one could very well carry the argument one step further and award the top spot to Boston because of its fourth outfielder. Reid Nichols is better defensively than anybody Oakland has as a backup.

Mind you, we are talking only "Defense" here. Forget for a moment batting averages, home runs and stolen bases. We're talking about Dwight Evans throwing out a runner at home in Fenway; Rick Miller going deep to the 440' mark in Detroit to make an over-the-shoulder catch; Jim Rice playing "The Wall" perfectly and firing to second; and Nichols outrunning a gapper to the alley in Seattle.

These men are not always pleased with some of the places of business. Some parks are tougher than others.

"Fenway Park", says Evans, "is tough in many ways. For one thing, there's no foul territory in right field. And the afternoon sun over the third base stands makes it difficult to pick up the fly ball." The other rough spots for Evans are Comiskey Park and Oakland Coliseum. He watches the A's outfielders, all of whom play shallow. And this ball park, in a bowl beneath the earth level, is subject to strange wind swirls.

"When a high fly ball is hit, the instinct is to move back. And for some reason, on a low line drive, the wind will knock the ball back."

Miller concurs on the difficulty factor of Fenway in center field. He says it is tough to know exactly where to play, although he prefers to shade right center so as to protect the triangle at the point of the Red Sox bullpen.

"If you allow a ball to get into that area, with its corners and angles, it's an automatic triple," Rick says, "So I try to play toward right center."

RICK MILLER

Yankee Stadium is no day at the beach because of its vastness. You tend to play toward left-center there. In that way you can try to protect against the gap shot that rolls forever into "Death Valley." According to Miller, the whole outfield slopes toward the third base line. Rick likes Tiger Stadium because there's plenty of room to roam and it is more symmetrical than the big ball park in the Bronx.

Rice will go along with the Yankee Stadium evaluation in that the sun can bother you in left field, particularly late in the season. A lot of left fielders of the past have had some dreadful afternoons out there. Sure, most of them were in old Yankee Stadium, but the renovated one is on the same site.

Rice has another park that, in his opinion, is the hardest to play. "Anaheim Stadium is tough to play all the time. The ball gets out to you in a hurry. It comes off the bat out of a sea of white shirts in the first base stands, and it's hard to pick up." As far as Fenway is concerned, Jim feels the most difficult thing he had to learn as a left fielder was playing the Wall. As events have proved, he has learned the lesson well.

Nichols is in his second major league year and is just this season getting some playing time. He has played center field mostly, and also left field when Rice was hurt. He likes all outfield positions but favors left. Nichols loves playing the Wall, with all its decoying possibilities.

The Minneapolis Metrodome is not one of his favorites. "There are little circles up there against the top, the shape of baseballs.

If you take your eye off the ball while turning to go back for it, you're in trouble." The other park that turns Nichols off is Municipal Stadium in Cleveland. He says the outfield terrain is very irregular, bad for fielding ground balls.

An assenting opinion on Municipal Stadium comes from Evans. He says, "The park is terrible, like a cow pasture. You can't be aggressive there. And if you are, you are often penalized."

And on to another subject with the estimable Mr. Evans, regarding the same location. When asked about the toughest play for him, he laughed, "The toughest play for me is playing in Cleveland."

Actually, Evans makes the tough plays but thinks it is hard sometimes to read the wind at Fenway before or during a game. There are times when the flag is blowing one way while a tuft of grass picked up and released goes another.

Rice and Nichols agree that the toughest play is charging a ground ball straight at you, picking it up cleanly, setting and throwing accurately. Nichols likes to keep the ground ball directly in front of him so he loses no momentum and can get everything into his throw. Rice feels he still needs to improve on that phase of his game and works constantly to that end.

Miller's most difficult play is the line drive straight at him. It can either knuckle or sail. There's not much time. Nor is there much time to gauge the soft liner toward you which has to be either charged or played safely. If you hesitate you can be caught in between and an error results.

The errors that outfielders make are not interred with their bones. They cannot dwell upon them. Only the critics can. Stressing the importance of aggressiveness in the outfield, Evans says he knows no other way to play. "Oh, I make errors, and I've made a lot this year. But they've been aggressive errors."

Miller backs up the point. "I'm inclined to be skeptical of an outfielder who wins a Gold Glove because he makes no errors." Meaning, perhaps, that said outfielder doesn't take many chances and doesn't get to as many batted balls. Rice's early aggressiveness caused him to make mistakes and he started to press. But he has coped with that and now has the confidence to make the routine and difficult plays.

Regardless of the seeming disclaimers, you just don't see these Boston outfielders make many errors. They are pretty to watch because they know just what they want to do. The starting three has been at it since Miller came back last year. They work well together. And there's no loss when Nichols is in there.

They have opinions on other American League outfielders, too. Rice ranks Henderson of the A's and Dave Winfield of the Yankees as two of the best left fielders. Henderson has the edge in speed, but Winfield—no plodder by any means—has the stronger throwing arm and is a complete outfielder.

Miller latched onto the Paul Blair style right from the start. He watched the starry Orioles' center fielder and tried to pattern his own play after him. Rick says that Blair never made "in-flight corrections—never had to vary his course on the way to the ball. He was one of the best I've ever seen."

REID NICHOLS

JIM RICE

Evans had his own idol; not surprisingly, Al Kaline of the Tigers. Dwight used to watch him position himself, watched him anticipate, watched him charge the ball and come up throwing always to the right place. If you are going to model yourself after someone, Al Kaline is not a bad choice. He was merely the best at his position in the league. Now Evans is.

When one beholds outfielders in a game, one may think of them as a somnolent lot. They stand around between pitches, take a step here, a step there, scratch, look at the sky, fold their arms, crouch and uncrouch. You wonder what they are thinking when the count goes to 2-0, and 3-1, and the pitcher fidgets.

"I like to anticipate out there", Evans says, "It fills time and it's fun. I like to play off the catcher, like Carlton Fisk, and maybe get an extra jump when I know where the ball will be pitched." He likes to think a play or two ahead and plan how he can work a decoy on a hitter in a place like Tiger Stadium.

They are not in a vacuum out there. Things can get kind of quiet and lonely at times, but the quietness stops when the ball is hit to them and the loneliness quits when they quarterback each other into a catch. They are ready when the ball is hit to them. "And," says Rice. "You always want the ball hit to you."

Miller has had a shoulder spasm since last year but feels that is nearly back to normal now. He seems to have the necessary velocity on his throws, but not the carry.

Evans and Rice like to play off the catcher and his positioning before a pitch. That way, they can cheat a step or two either way, a step that could be the difference between a catch and a double.

ROUTE ONE, SAUGUS

A GREAT 1-2 COMBINATION

If publicity were all that mattered, then neither Rich Gedman nor Gary Allenson would be happy platooning as Red Sox catchers. Fortunately, their outlook has been a pleasant one because more and more people are beginning to recognize the overall talent of the catching staff.

That neither man has achieved the personal reputation of a Carlton Fisk goes without saying. But nowadays very few people lament Fisk's defection to Chicago for they realize the Red Sox catching has not only been consistent all year, but that Boston might have the best one-two combination in the A.L. And more than a few teams are interested in the No. 3 catcher, Roger LaFrancois.

Gedman has continued to develop after a sensational rookie season. He came off a slow start (1-17) to finish with a .288 average in 62 games last year. That was good enough to earn him the Sporting News choice as the A.L. Rookie Player of the Year, and second place in the balloting of the Baseball Writers Association of America. He plays primarily against right handers, and selected left handers.

Allenson not only became invaluable because of his catching experience, but his ability to hit with men in scoring position last year (.310, 13-42), more than justified the feeling of Manager Ralph Houk that Allenson had just too many good credentials to let slip away from the organization. In fact, the Red Sox now are quick to point out that both Allenson and Gedman are home grown talents, just like the man they replaced.

RICH GEDMAN

"I think our situation has worked out quite well," says Allenson, the veteran in his fourth season. "People have always said you can't play and win with two catchers. That pitchers can't throw to two different guys. I guess we proved that theory wrong. Our record indicates it.

"We've been in first place most of the year. I think the concept of the team game and winning is important. I'll really enjoy this role particularly if it gets us to pennant-contending time, and into a playoff and World Series. That is what this game is all about . . . playing on a winner."

The Red Sox had to make believers out of a lot of people this year despite Gedman and Allenson's performances in the short season. In spring training, there were strong suggestions that Houk go and look for a veteran

Right now, you need a car that does more than just look good. It needs to have an efficient shape too. Like the new Celica GT Liftback. Now that's the right stuff!

Engineers say it's right. Celica's shape is so aerodynamically slippery it cheats the wind. Celica actually has a lower coefficient of drag — just 0.342 — than the Porsche 928!

And the right shape, plus Celica's high-torque 2.4 liter single overhead cam engine, equals the right performance.

Experts say it's right.

As Motor Trend noted, "Celica's shape is clean and highly contemporary — strong angularity diluted with just a little organic roundness."

Celica GT-S: the right stuff, plus....

Add the optional S package to a Celica Liftback and you've got the stuff dreams are made of! Super-wide 225/60 HR14 steel-belted radial tires on 7-inch wide alloy wheels. Wide fender flares. Rack and pinion steering. And inside, custom-adjustable sports seats, even map pockets on both doors!

"Where Are They Now?"

By Hugh McGovern

EARL WILSON

Red Sox pitcher 1959-1966 Wore No. 26

Then: Earl Wilson was a workhorse for the Red Sox in the first half of the 1960's.

Signed originally by Boston on May 11, 1953, the hard-throwing right-handed pitcher spent four years in the club's minor league system and two years in military service before arriving in the Hub in 1959. Wilson came back to stay in 1962 and became a solid member of the starting rotation, making 31, 37, 33 and 36 appearances his four full seasons with the Red Sox.

The highlight was a 1-0, no-hit victory over the then Los Angeles Angels June 26, 1962, one of 14 by Boston pitchers during the 82-year history of the team.

The pitcher was traded by Boston to Detroit in June of 1966 for outfielder Don Demeter.

When Wilson left, a member of the Red Sox coaching staff described him as a ".500 pitcher."

His record for mediocre Red Sox teams was 56-58, but with the Tigers, this hard-thrower blossomed into a 22-game winner the next year, posting a 22-11 log with a 3.27 earned run average.

Wilson spent 11 years in the major leagues and compiled a creditable 121-109 record and 3.69 earned run average.

Had the native of Ponchatoula, La., who grew up in San Diego, been with stronger Boston clubs, his record no doubt would be even more impressive.

Now: Wilson is 46 and lives in Detroit, his home since his days with the Tigers.

His days are spent operating his own companies—one that distributes heavy equipment and another that repairs them.

Wilson's hobby is golf. He describes himself as "a hacker," but sports a seven or eight handicap, an indication his game is as good as his pitching was.

In addition, the ex-pitcher is a frequent visitor to Tiger Stadium.

Quotes: What is your greatest memory of your days in Boston?

"I imagine most people would think it would be the no-hitter, but it wasn't.

"When I came back to Boston for the first time after the trade, I was used as a pinch-hitter and I received a standing ovation. The fans treated me well, with a great deal of respect."

Incidentally, Wilson was a dangerous hitter during his playing career, which was in the pre-designated hitter era. He had 35 home runs, just one less than the American League record established by Wes Ferrell, who also wore a Red Sox uniform at one time.

• Were you a Red Sox fan growing up?

"No, I followed the Dodgers, just like all blacks of that time did because of Jackie Robinson.

"But I did have a connection with the Red Sox. Bill Billings of Ryan Aircraft in San Diego sponsored a team and some of our equipment was given to him by the Red Sox.

"Billings was a close friend of Tom Downey, who scouted and signed me for the Red Sox."

• After being with the Boston organization from 1953 until 1966, the trade to Detroit must have been a shock?

"I was disappointed to leave. It was my first trade. I didn't think I could be traded.

"But just before that the team had also made a deal with Kansas City so we had been kidding around that more trades would be made."

• Still, it didn't hurt your career?

"It was a turning point. Maybe I had become too complacent in Boston."

• You must be especially proud of your 22-win season for the Tigers in 1967?

"Of course, but wins for a pitcher can be deceiving.

"The next year I had an even better earned run average (2.85 in 1968 as compared to 3.27 the previous season), but I didn't have anywhere near the same number of wins (13). It depends on who you're pitching against and your team.

"Sure, some pitchers like Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson are going to be big winners. They're exceptional, but the rest of us need luck."

- Like a great relief pitcher on the team?

"If it hadn't been for Dick Radatz in Boston, I wouldn't have won anything," Wilson said with a chuckle.

- Did you enjoy returning to Boston for Old-Timers Day May 1?

"I had mixed emotions. I didn't want to be thought of as an old-timer. But I was surprised how smoothly everything went. It was a first class operation.

"And it gave me a chance to visit some old friends in the area."

- So you have pleasant memories of Boston?

"My God yes. Boston as a whole is great. I had a marvelous time there as a player."

- Are you still a Red Sox fan even though you wound up in Detroit?

"I still follow them closely. Carl Yastrzemski was my teammate there, but he's been there forever. I think they have an excellent chance to win this year. They've a great bullpen and (Jim) Rice will pop a few for them."

Fenway's Blue Jackets

By Jack McCarthy

“We like people to feel safe in our ball park,” says Joe McDermott executive assistant to Red Sox owners Haywood Sullivan and Buddy LeRoux. To accomplish that end, the Sox, since 1978, have relied on the “Blue Jackets”—Crowd Control Unit.

Says McDermott, “We feel that 99 per cent of the fans come to Fenway to enjoy the games, and we want to make sure that they do. For the one per cent who are bent on trouble, our Crowd Control Unit has the remedy. Troublemakers don’t remain in the ballpark very long.”

In recent years, there has been concern throughout sports in general with rowdy behavior and the Sox responded to it early, forming their unit to work hand-in-hand with the Boston police to attempt to stop any rowdiness before it started and to quickly control it if it began.

To that end, a half-dozen men, mainly young college athletes, were sent into the centerfield bleachers to maintain order and

YAZ

By JOE GIULIOTTI

The terms "headed for greatness" or "has a can't miss future" are familiar ones used by the media in describing an athlete who has shown tremendous potential in college or a minor league sport.

But, how many measure up to the advance billing? Many do, but more often there is failure or a few fleeting moments of glory followed by a general decline and, finally, disappearance from the scene.

The true test of greatness is high performance and longevity. Only a select group has achieved it and Red Sox fans have been fortunate to have watched one of the truly greats of the game the past 21 years.

When Carl Michael Yastrzemski was signed out of Notre Dame he was brought to get his first look at Fenway Park. As a 19-year-old he toured the ballpark and observed, "I can hit here."

He's playing against people who weren't born the day he made that statement and still doing what he predicted he would — hit.

At age 42, he's certainly not the player he once was but still commands the utmost respect from rivals. Oh, every once in a while some young pitcher — or for that matter even a veteran — will try to sneak the fastball past the "old man" and has to watch it ripped somewhere.

Yastrzemski is playing ball at an age he should be enjoying his second love — fishing. There are those who feel he'll tarnish his great image by playing past his time, such as Willie Mays and Hank Aaron did.

"When I can't hit any more I'll pick up my bat and glove and go home," is Yastrzemski's response to that. "I know I can't hit as I used to, but I feel I can still hit well enough to play in the major leagues."

During the strike-shortened season of 1981, Yastrzemski missed getting 100 hits for the first time in his professional career. He had 83 but easily would have reached 100 if a full season had been played.

Showing he hadn't slowed all that much, he drove in 16 of 22 runners from third with less than two out, had seven home runs, each of which either tied a game or put the Red Sox ahead and, during the stretch drive when the Red Sox made their run at the second half East Division title, batted .300 in August and knocked in 17 runs in September.

One of the greatest compliments paid to Yastrzemski last season came from Detroit Tiger manager Sparky Anderson, after his team had lost four straight to the Red Sox in mid-September to all but knock them out of the divisional title.

"If I had someone like Yastrzemski or Tony Perez on my club, I'd win it," he said. "Not so much for what they can do on the field but just having them on the ballclub. But, I don't have anyone like that."

Yes, Yastrzemski has more than survived the test of time. Even before he played his first major league game, he was under a microscope. He was replacing another Red Sox legend named Ted Williams in left field.

He gave indications of what was to come on opening day in 1961 in Fenway Park when he got his first big league hit off Ray Herbert and later threw a runner out at home plate.

From there he went on to become a legend in his own time. His moments of glory and achievements would fill more pages than a novel.

Perhaps his finest hour came on the night of September 12, 1979 when he grounded a single past the glove of New York Yankee second baseman Willie Randolph to become the 15th player in major league history to collect 3,000 hits. It also made him the first in the American League to have 3,000 hits and 400 home runs. The latter figure was achieved two months earlier when he connected off Oakland A's righthander Mike Morgan, also in Fenway Park.

Entering 1982, he had 3,058 games under his belt (the second most in history) and 11,149 at bats (fourth on the all-time list).

A few of his career highlights include Most Valuable Player in 1967; Gold Glove winner in 1963-65-67-68-69-71-77 (in 1977 his fielding percentage was 1.000); American League career record for intentional walks (161); triple crown winner in 1967; three times the American League slugging winner (1965-67-70); league leader in outfield assists seven times (1962-63-64-66-69-71-77); 16 times selected to the American League All-Star team and the MVP of the 1970 game; and co-holder of a major league record with five home runs in two games (May 19-20, 1976, three against the Detroit Tigers and two vs. the New York Yankees, one coming off lefthander Ron Guidry).

1967 was his personal best as far as all around performance when he almost single handedly led the Red Sox to the "Impossible Dream" pennant. He batted .326, hit 44 home runs and knocked in 121. During the final two games of the season against the Minnesota Twins — games the Red Sox could not lose, he was a staggering seven for eight.

Six times he's hit over .300, winning the batting title in 1963-67-68. In 1970 he lost out on the final day to Alex Johnson when both ended with .329 marks, but Johnson won by three percentage points when the average was stretched to five figures.

Yastrzemski has refused to look back at his accomplishments and does not like to dwell on them. "I never look back, always ahead," is one of his favorite sayings.

There's one goal which has eluded him and one he talks about — a World Series championship. Twice he's played in the series and each went to the deciding seventh game before the Red Sox lost. In 1967 it was to the St. Louis Cardinals and 1975 to the Cincinnati Reds, in one of baseball's most memorable World Series.

"That's another reason I decided to come back," he said. "I believe in this team and Ralph Houk. I honestly feel we have a chance and I know I can contribute."

Whether the team wins or whether he has a good year, Yastrzemski long ago stamped himself as one of the all-time greats. He has survived the test. He's defied "Father Time" but he can't hold on against him much longer. When Number Eight finally cleans out his locker, it will be like losing a New England landmark. But when he goes, he most certainly will not be forgotten.

Sept. 30, 1967 Yaz homers in the Red Sox sweep of the Twins to win the pennant.

You can always spot a Genius by its features.

Look closely at the new SL-5000. It is innovative. Yet understandable. Sophisticated. Yet uncomplicated.

Clearly, this is no ordinary video cassette recorder.

Clearly, this is a product of Genius. The Genius of Betamax.

To start with, you'll notice that the Sony Betamax SL-5000 has advanced front loading. In fact, everything is right on the front. So it's fast, easy and convenient to use, particularly in confined spaces.

And here's another stroke of Genius. The Sony Betamax gives you all the record functions on the left; all the playback functions on the right. That's one more reason the SL-5000—for all its sophistication—is remarkably simple to operate.

Now consider these advantages. The SL-5000 lets you tape one show while you're watching another. And it can be programmed in advance. Which means you're able to record even when you're not at home.

Naturally, it wouldn't be a Sony Betamax without the electronic marvel we call BetaScan. With BetaScan, you can actually see what you're looking for in fast-forward and fast-reverse; then stop when you find it.

There's more. The SL-5000 has Express Tuning to take you directly to the channel you want, skipping the channels in between. It also includes remote control, freeze frame, electronic feather-touch controls.... In fact, almost every important feature you can think of. Plus one you'd probably never dream of: a reasonable price tag.

Of course, to fully appreciate the brilliance of the SL-5000, you have to see it in person. So stop in at your Sony dealer and ask to watch a Genius at play.

To insure brilliant performance every time, always use Sony Beta cassettes.

XEROX

Ken Coleman
and Jon Miller

After two years together, the successful duo of Ken Coleman and Jon Miller will again team-up behind the mike for the WITS Red Sox radio network. This combination of youth and experience offers unique insight into the game of baseball.

Coleman, the executive director of the Jimmy Fund, is a long-time Boston favorite. He has been with the Red Sox on radio and TV for twelve years. Miller, who is only 29 years old, has been on radio since he was in high school. He has spent the last two years of his career with the Red Sox.

In all, Coleman has over 30 years broadcasting experience; 10 years with the Cleveland Indians, 14 years with the Cleveland Browns, 2 years with NBC football, five years of Harvard football, and play-by-play announcer for seven NFL championship games. His other credits include four years as announcer for the Cincinnati Reds on TV, and as the voice of Ohio State football. His broadcasting excellence has won Coleman 12 AFTRA awards.

At San Mateo College (CA.), Miller worked in radio and then went on to work at a TV station in Santa Rosa (CA.). From there he went to the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League, becoming the youngest play-by-play announcer in the league's history.

Following 1974 with the Oakland A's baseball team, he broadcast games for the San Francisco Dons basketball team and worked for the TV networks of the San Jose Earthquakes and Washington Diplomats of the North American Soccer League.

Miller found his way back into baseball, joining the broadcasting team of the Texas Rangers, and later with Coleman and the Red Sox network.

Subject to slight change.*

There's a new team in the TV 38 (WSBK) booth for Red Sox games this year. Veteran Ned Martin now works with newcomer Bob Montgomery in TV 38's eighth straight year with the Red Sox.

Martin, one of the most popular announcers in the New England area, is now in his 22nd year of radio-TV Red Sox play-by-play, and his fourth with TV 38. Ned graduated from Duke University and served in the Marine Corps before starting his career by announcing minor league games. He joined Curt Gowdy on the Red Sox network in 1961 and has been a favorite with the fans ever since. In the fall of 1979 he went to Japan to telecast games between the Major League All Stars and Japanese teams, and from 1976-78 he broadcast the American League Championship Series games on the CBS Radio network.

Montgomery replaced Ken Harrelson at TV 38. He was a catcher in the Red Sox organization from 1962 until he retired in the spring of 1980. Monty came to the majors to stay in 1971 and was recognized as one of the best reserve catchers in baseball. In 1973 the Boston Baseball Writers voted him their "Unsung Hero Award," and in 1972 he was named the BoSox Club "Man of the Year." An arm injury in 1979 brought an early retirement to his playing career. The past two years he was associated with WITS Radio doing a sports talk show and some announcing and color commentary of Red Sox games.

In Europe people are practically weaned on great beer. So nobody knows beer like a European. And among all those great bottles of beer, the one Europeans choose most often has only recently become known to you: Kronenbourg. Europeans drink and enjoy more Kronenbourg than any other bottle of beer. More than Heineken. More than Beck's. Perhaps it's Kronenbourg's smooth taste. Or 300 year heritage. But Europe's relationship with Kronenbourg isn't a casual one. Now in America people are discovering they like Heineken. But Kronenbourg ... that's love.

to watch for trouble. "We felt that this type of unit would be able to communicate with the younger crowd in the bleachers and to be able to contend with any trouble that did start," says McDermott. They were highly successful.

"We have a unique situation in Boston, where there are so many colleges, and where there are so many students from all over the country. They bring their allegiances to their home town teams with them and, of course, sometimes root against the Red Sox, which can start things going. But, our group can deal with the students and other young people as their peers and that helps. They can reason with these people."

The Unit, all of whom fill out their distinctive blue blazers with unmistakable muscle, has now risen to a group of 21, split into three-man teams. Each team has one man who is a deputized police officer with power of arrest. They are in constant communication with one another through walkie-talkies, and can be at a trouble spot within seconds.

"We work hand-in-hand with the Boston police," McDermott says, "There are excellent communications between our unit and the Boston officers assigned to the park, and that helps a great deal."

Baseball in general has been concerned with security and oversees the various ballparks under Harry J. Gibbs, a former Secret Service officer now working out of the Baseball Commissioner's office.

The Red Sox consider Fenway to be a "Family Ball Park", and, as McDermott points out, on many days there may be as many as 10,000 children at a game.

"We intend to see that these people enjoy themselves and are not bothered," he says, "Fan safety is our prime concern. From the beginnings of the unit in 1978, with those six men in centerfield, we have grown with the idea, and we feel that just the presence of these men has eliminated a lot of problems.

"They begin their work when the gates open, checking at the turnstiles for any one attempting to bring bottles into the park, or anything else that could be used as a missile. They then begin patrolling their sections, watching for any signs of trouble or situations that could get out of hand.

"Since the inception of the Unit, there have been no melees of any serious degree, because they were stopped before they got started.

"Surprisingly enough, most fights have occurred over a foul ball coming into a section. People who seem mild enough will battle for that baseball and one thing can lead to another. A lot of $300 suits have been wrecked over a $6 baseball."

The supervisor of the Unit at Fenway is John Fischer, who joined the Unit at its inception in 1977-78 when he was a student at Massachusetts Bay Community College.

McDermott was named to a Special Commission formed by the Massachusetts Legislature in 1978 to look into violence at sporting events. This group also included Boston Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan and Foxboro Police Chief John Gaudette, who is head of security at Schaeffer Stadium.

That McDermott has been successful in overseeing the Red Sox Unit and its approach to crowd supervision is evidenced by this statistic, "Since 1977, when we first took on this job, we have had approximately 10,000,000 people attend games at Fenway Park.

"Within that number we have had only a minimal number of incidents serious enough to warrant court action. I think that tells us that we have been somewhat successful, not only in crowd control, but in the prevention of trouble and making Fenway an enjoyable place for children and families, particularly, to watch a ball game."

The Control Unit has been around long enough now to have its own graduates, so to speak: Keith Willis, former Northeastern co-captain who has signed with the Pittsburgh Steelers; Sam Stepney of B.U., now an assistant coach for the Terriers; Harry Cash, Harvard senior guard; Martin McDonald, B.C. tackle; and Mike Battle, former Northeastern star, who will have a tryout with the Patriots.

The point is, of course, that these are young, big and strong collegians and athletes who combine size with discretion and savvy.

As McDermott says, "We like people to feel safe in our ballpark."

FENWAY RENOVATIONS CONTINUE

The Red Sox continued renovations of Fenway Park during the winter and spring. As part of the construction work on the new roof boxes, it was necessary to strengthen and rebuild the foundations. It therefore was a good opportunity to rebuild and enlarge the Red Sox clubhouse. Now the players can enjoy a comfortable and roomy area as they prepare for each of the season's 81 home games.

A GREAT 1-2 COMBINATION

catcher. But in the past, doing exactly that often kept some talented young players in the minors. So Houk decided he wouldn't handle it that way.

Platooning Allenson and Gedman solved the immediate problem. Houk figured he couldn't be too badly off sticking with his young catchers, particularly since their combined overall totals included more base hits and home runs than the Chicago staff last year, including Fisk. It was hard to ignore that the Sox had a 34-22 record with Gedman behind the plate. Or that he showed an ability to hit the ball to all fields. No one on the market, he finally concluded, had nearly as much talent as Gedman or Allenson.

The only real decision Houk wound up making was who to keep as the third catcher. After weighing the possibilities, he chose LaFrancois, a left-handed hitter, who works primarily out of the bullpen. That choice has worked out well for it has assured playing time in the minors for hopefuls John Lickert, Dave Schmidt and Marc Sullivan. Now, it appears that the Sox are solid at the catching position for years to come.

"For me," says Gedman, "It's just nice to get the opportunity. With a lot of ball clubs, you just sit back and never get a chance to play. You might be in minors, 5-6 years and not get the opportunity that I've had the past two seasons. I got a chance not only to get to the big leagues and see what it is like, I've gotten a chance to play.

"That's a big help and it's a nice sign from the organization that they're willing to make sacrifices sometimes, or just take chances.

ROGER LAFRANCOIS

It's nice to know that they have enough confidence in their people—scouts, coaches and managers—that whatever they said, that is the case. They say I think this guy can do it now. The guys below know there is an opportunity there."

Over the course of a 162 game season, says Houk, he expects to use all three of his catchers. He is as happy with the improvement of LaFrancois as he is with Gedman and Allenson.

"You need a third catcher," said Houk, "And Roger has become a good one. He's a good receiver, and he has a strong arm. His release throwing is something like Thurman Munson used to have. He's working very hard, and getting more work actually than if he'd been playing in the minors."

Gedman says the strength of the catching staff is that everybody knows and understands his role. And each guy is pulling for the other one.

"We work well together," says Gedman. "Anytime we can, we help each other out. I feel we have a good relationship and we know what we have to do. We know what the main goal is, and that is to win as many games as possible. If there is any way we can help each other, we're going to do it.

"We all have roles on the team. My role is to play vs. righties, and an occasional lefty.

That's fine with me. Somewhere down the line I'd like to play everyday, but right now, it's not a problem."

Allenson said he felt the same way about sharing the catching job.

"Sure I would have liked for it to work out better as far as getting a starting catching job," says Allenson. "If it was a reverse role and Geddy was right-handed and I was left-handed, I'd play more. But the goal is winning and if this is what it takes to get that, I'll be happy with it. I'd be happier to play more, but the situation doesn't call for it."

Gedman says he is happy that the Red Sox gave him his big chance a year ago. He is one of the least experienced catchers in the entire system. But the club has let him grow at his own pace and it has worked out.

"I think as far as techniques are concerned," says Gedman, "You learn them on the way up. That is why they have the minor leagues. You learn as much about your position as you can down there. Once up here, it should be a matter of refining. A matter of playing the game, learning the hitters and pitchers."

LaFrancois adds there is much to learn even in the majors, if you're not catching everyday.

"Just being around is important," he says. "Finding out about life in the majors. Learning just what the big leagues are about. Believe it or not, I think I've become a much better hitter even though I haven't been playing. Maybe I can't prove it because I'm not playing. But in this organization, I know sooner or later, I'll get a chance."

All of them realize the common sense of the two-handed catch, particularly Evans and Nichols, but they all go one-hand at times. Miller says the one-handed way is easier and that more players do it now because the gloves are so much bigger than they used to be. Evans says it still is a bad habit.

And Dwight loves the intimidation factor of his throwing game. He will dare the runner and thinks it is fun to see a runner decide not to take an extra base.

The Boston Red Sox outfield combines aggressiveness, intelligence and style. The men do their individual jobs so well that they meld into a coordinated unit. A sort of choreography, in effect.

They can rank defensively with the Yastrzemski-Smith-Conigliaro outfield of 1967. Or the Yaz/Rice-Lynn-Evans combination of 1975. And they have a legitimate fourth outfielder with a glove this time.

The company's firm name is Miller, Rice, Evans and Nichols.

Official Umpire Signals

Spectator Interference — batter, runner and other runner(s) will be placed at the base(s) which the umpires feel they would have reached with no interference.

Time — ball is dead, play suspended. This sign used when ball is foul, umpire then pointing to foul territory.

Batted Balls Hit Fair or Foul — if fair, umpire points to fair territory — if foul he raises arms overhead (as in "Time" above) and then turns and points to foul territory, and vocally calls "foul."

Awarding of Bases — this shows umpire designating base or bases awarded by overthrow or ground rule double.

Home Run — circular motion of umpire's arm denotes home run.

Safe — both arms parallel to ground indicates runner is safe.

Out — right arm extended out and up indicates runner is out.

Balls and Strikes — umpire makes no arm movement if he judges pitch a ball; if he judges the pitch a strike he uses an exaggerated movement of his right arm.

Worthy of the King of Beers.

There's a tradition at Anheuser-Busch. A tradition that says never be satisfied until you've achieved the best.

Now, out of this tradition, comes a light beer worthy of the King of Beers. One with a clean, distinctive taste. Budweiser Light.

It took time. Patience. And a quest for quality that led to the proud list of ingredients and the Beechwood Aging process made famous by the King of Beers.

We know the best never comes easy. That's why there's nothing else like it.

Bring out your best.

1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
Salt and pepper to taste

PITUKA PEREZ'S
STUFFED POTATOES

5 lbs. red potatoes
1 tbsp. salt
1 lb. ground beef
1 small onion, chopped
2 green onions, chopped
1 tbsp. tomato sauce
Salt, black pepper and garlic powder to taste
Plain cracker meal
4 large eggs, beaten

Peel potatoes and slice. Boil for about 15 minutes in salted water, and mash. Re-heat, stirring, until there is a slight film on the bottom of the pan, removing extra moisture. In a saucepan, brown the ground beef; drain; add onions, tomato sauce and spices. Make a round ball with the potatoes, about the size of a tennis ball, and then halve it. Stuff with about 1 tablespoon of the hamburger mixture then put the potato together, so the stuffing is enclosed in the middle. Dip the potato in beaten egg, then roll in cracker meal to coat. Fry in a little hot corn oil until brown on all sides. Makes about 16 balls, that you can eat out of hand if you want. Pituka says they eat them as snacks.

DON'T BUY A MAGNAVISION JUST BECAUSE IT PLAYS MOVIES.

Watch your favorite movie on Magnavision® and you'll hardly recognize it.

Because Magnavision gives you a sharp, astonishingly clear picture—better than any VCR can deliver. And most discs are recorded in brilliant stereo sound as well, so you can hear your movie sound track the way it was meant to be heard...a whole new dimension in video/audio entertainment systems.

But we didn't develop Magnavision just for movies.

Magnavision is a LaserVision player.

And you'll be able to do things with the LaserVision system that are impossible with other systems.

It all starts with a laser beam: the heart of Magnavision.

The laser beam picks up a picture from a special video disc (it's about the same size as a long-playing record, but it's made of tough aluminum plated acrylic).

Nothing touches the disc except a tightly focused beam of light which reads the 0.4 micrometer pit on the disc. So there's nothing to wear out, and you can expect to see the same sharp, clear picture time after time.

Variable speed slow motion, jitter-free freeze-frame on any of the standard disc's 54,000 individual frames, and a "Rapid Search" button let you find just the place you want, when you want it—in seconds.

This advanced technology also gives you room-filling stereo sound (you can play it through your own stereo system—frequency response is 40 to 20,000 HZ \pm 3db).

You can enjoy movies, shows and concerts (wait till you hear Olivia Newton-John's* new video Physical disc in stereo!).

And the list grows longer every day.

There are also more and more "interactive" laser discs available—that's where the fun begins.

These are discs that let you participate, using the Magnavision wireless Infrared Remote Control.

You can learn How to Watch Pro Football[†] (and be quizzed afterwards); or try all the games and puzzles on the Grammy nominated The First National Kidisc[†].

You can go on art gallery tours and attend classical, pop or rock concerts.

Don't know how to filet a flounder? Take the Master Cooking Course[†] from Craig Claiborne and Pierre Franey. Just put your Magnavision into "Slow Motion" and they'll show you exactly how it's done.

You can see it all on Magnavision right now.

Just stop in at your nearest Magnavision Dealer, push the "PLAY" button, and step into the future. To find your nearest dealer, call toll-free 800-447-4700.
